

August is Food Documentary Month at The Slow Bell

August 14 The Power of Community

The island nation of Cuba was left high and dry when the Soviet Union fell- no fuel, no food, no fertilizer. This is the story of how the community survived by growing food; tobacco and sugar crops were replaced by organic veggies, and urban agriculture now feeds Havana.

August 21 Fresh

A hopeful look at the production of food in the US through stories of young farmers today

August 28 King Corn

College buddies return to their roots in the Midwest to try their hands as corn farmers- amidst this hilarious, rollicking reel they explore the ins and outs of our food system

Come check out the movie and enjoy a bit of local food, or even a cocktail concocted with local ingredients!

Wednesdays
6-8pm

Questions, suggestions, please contact Celia: cwhitehead@islandinstitute.org

Brought to you by the Island Institute Fellowship, the CICA Agricultural Committee and the Slow Bell