

Feeling Blue this Christmas?

The holiday season can be difficult for many people - those who are grieving and lonely, those who have lost jobs, those struggling with illness, or those who feel alienated from friends and family. If you or a loved one find yourself facing the holidays with more anxiety than joy, come on December 13th for a time of worship: a time of music, scripture, stories, prayer, silent reflection, and communion as together we share our pain with God and prepare our hearts for the coming of Christ.

The sanctuary will be open for prayer and meditation starting at 6:30 PM, with worship beginning at 7 PM.
